If we work upon marble, it will perish; if on brass, time will efface it; if we rear temples, they will crumble into dust; but if we work upon immortal minds, and imbue them with principles, with the just fear of God and love of our fellow-men, we engrave on those tablets something that will brighten all eternity.

— Daniel Webster

The dangers of knowledge are not to be compared with the danger of ignorance. Man is more likely to miss his way in darkness than in twilight; in twilight than in full sun.

— Whately

Imparting knowledge is only lighting other men's candle at our lamp, without depriving ourselves of any flame.

— Jane Porter

Gregg Taylor listens intently as Mr. Koos explains the scheduling for the coming year.

Mr. Jerry Koos is certainly an important part of Fairfield Jr. High. He not only helps the students find the right turn on the highway of life, but is also a friend to every student in school. He may be seen working diligently in the office, making an announcement over the loud-speaker, or helping a new student find his next class. Very definitely, Mr. Koos is the axis around which the sphere of Fairfield revolves.

Mr. Koos is responsible for keeping our Jr. High functioning smoothly by directing the office, maintenance, and cafeteria staff. He also is responsible for his faculty and techniques used in teaching. His office is always open to parents and students alike to discuss any problems that may arise.

Administration Steers Crew

When the job of a principal starts to get tough, and duties begin to overflow, as it often does, the assistant principal lends a hand with the expanding load.

Mr. Bakle assists Mr. Koos while carrying a tightly timed schedule of his own. He is responsible for disciplinary action over students and he is heard making daily announcements in the cafeteria where he helps out. All in all, Fairfield would be a completely different school without Mr. Bakle's supervision and control.

As he picks up his mail, Mr. Bakle pauses to glance around the office.

Mr. Andrews — our “helping friend”

Mr. Andrews, guidance counselor, takes time from his busy schedule to make sure Spartans are traveling on the right path. Mr. Andrews works primarily with seventh and eighth graders, and co-sponsors Student Council. He enjoys working with young people, and is a great sports enthusiast.

Mrs. Stephens does a great job in her work at Fairfield by her understanding and intense interest in the students. Mrs. Stephens counsels the freshman class and a part of the eighth grade. Though the majority of a counselor's time is spent in conferences with students and parents, a large portion must be used to catch up with the overflow of paperwork. Mrs. Stephens enjoys sports, camping, and cooking.

Mrs. Stephens lends a sympathetic ear.

Mr. Andrews discusses a student's grades

Guidance

The job of people working in guidance is indeed a very important one. Guidance counselors are helping to model citizens of the future, and to shape their personalities. Through guidance a student is helped to plan his life. Through conferences, the student may decide on the job he wishes to make his career. Fairfield's guidance counselors can always spare a moment for a student with a question or problem he or she would like to discuss or receive advice about. Though the pay may not be great, the rewards of working with young people are many and varied.

Mrs. Lake busily types one of many bulletins.

Mrs. Harvill, one of Fairfield's secretaries, lists among her duties enrolling and withdrawing students, running the machines, Typing letters, answering questions and the ever-ringing phone. Mrs. Lake is Fairfield's secretary and treasurer. She takes care of paying bills, ordering supplies, and candy sales while also managing the money.

Mrs. Harvill dashes off a memo to one of the teachers.

Mrs. Warner attends to one of a school nurse's many duties.

Mrs. Warner helps to identify health problems and assist between the school and the home-and community agencies who serve the health of students.

Mrs. Pinkerton has put in many hours of work here at Fairfield. In fact, five years' worth altogether, as the study hall clerk. Many a student has spent an enjoyable period each day with her. Mrs. Pinkerton also takes care of the daily attendance.

These ladies take time out of their very busy schedule of preparing daily well-balance meals to pose for this picture.

Staff Gives Needed Services

The kitchen staff, headed and managed by Mrs. Marquart, put in many long hours as they work diligently to serve healthful lunches to the student body, faculty, and administration. Many hours of menu-planning goes into the preparation and production of each meal. The women who perform this tedious job are, pictured above, from left to right; I. Walter, M. Doster, E. Leiman, P. Blombach, H. Marquart, G. Melchi, H. Sprunger, and M. Reinke.

Our custodial staff work many long hours to keep Fairfield spotless and in good condition. A few of their many duties are being sure that the building is always properly heated, doing various repair jobs around the school, making needed equipment available to teachers, and at the end of each school day, cleaning each classroom which shows the wear and tear of the day's busy schedule.

And Never-Ending Skies!

Under Mrs. Stephen's direction, Student Council builds a better Fairfield.

Stacey Benson, Sahida Abdool, and Sue Hardy head Student Council.

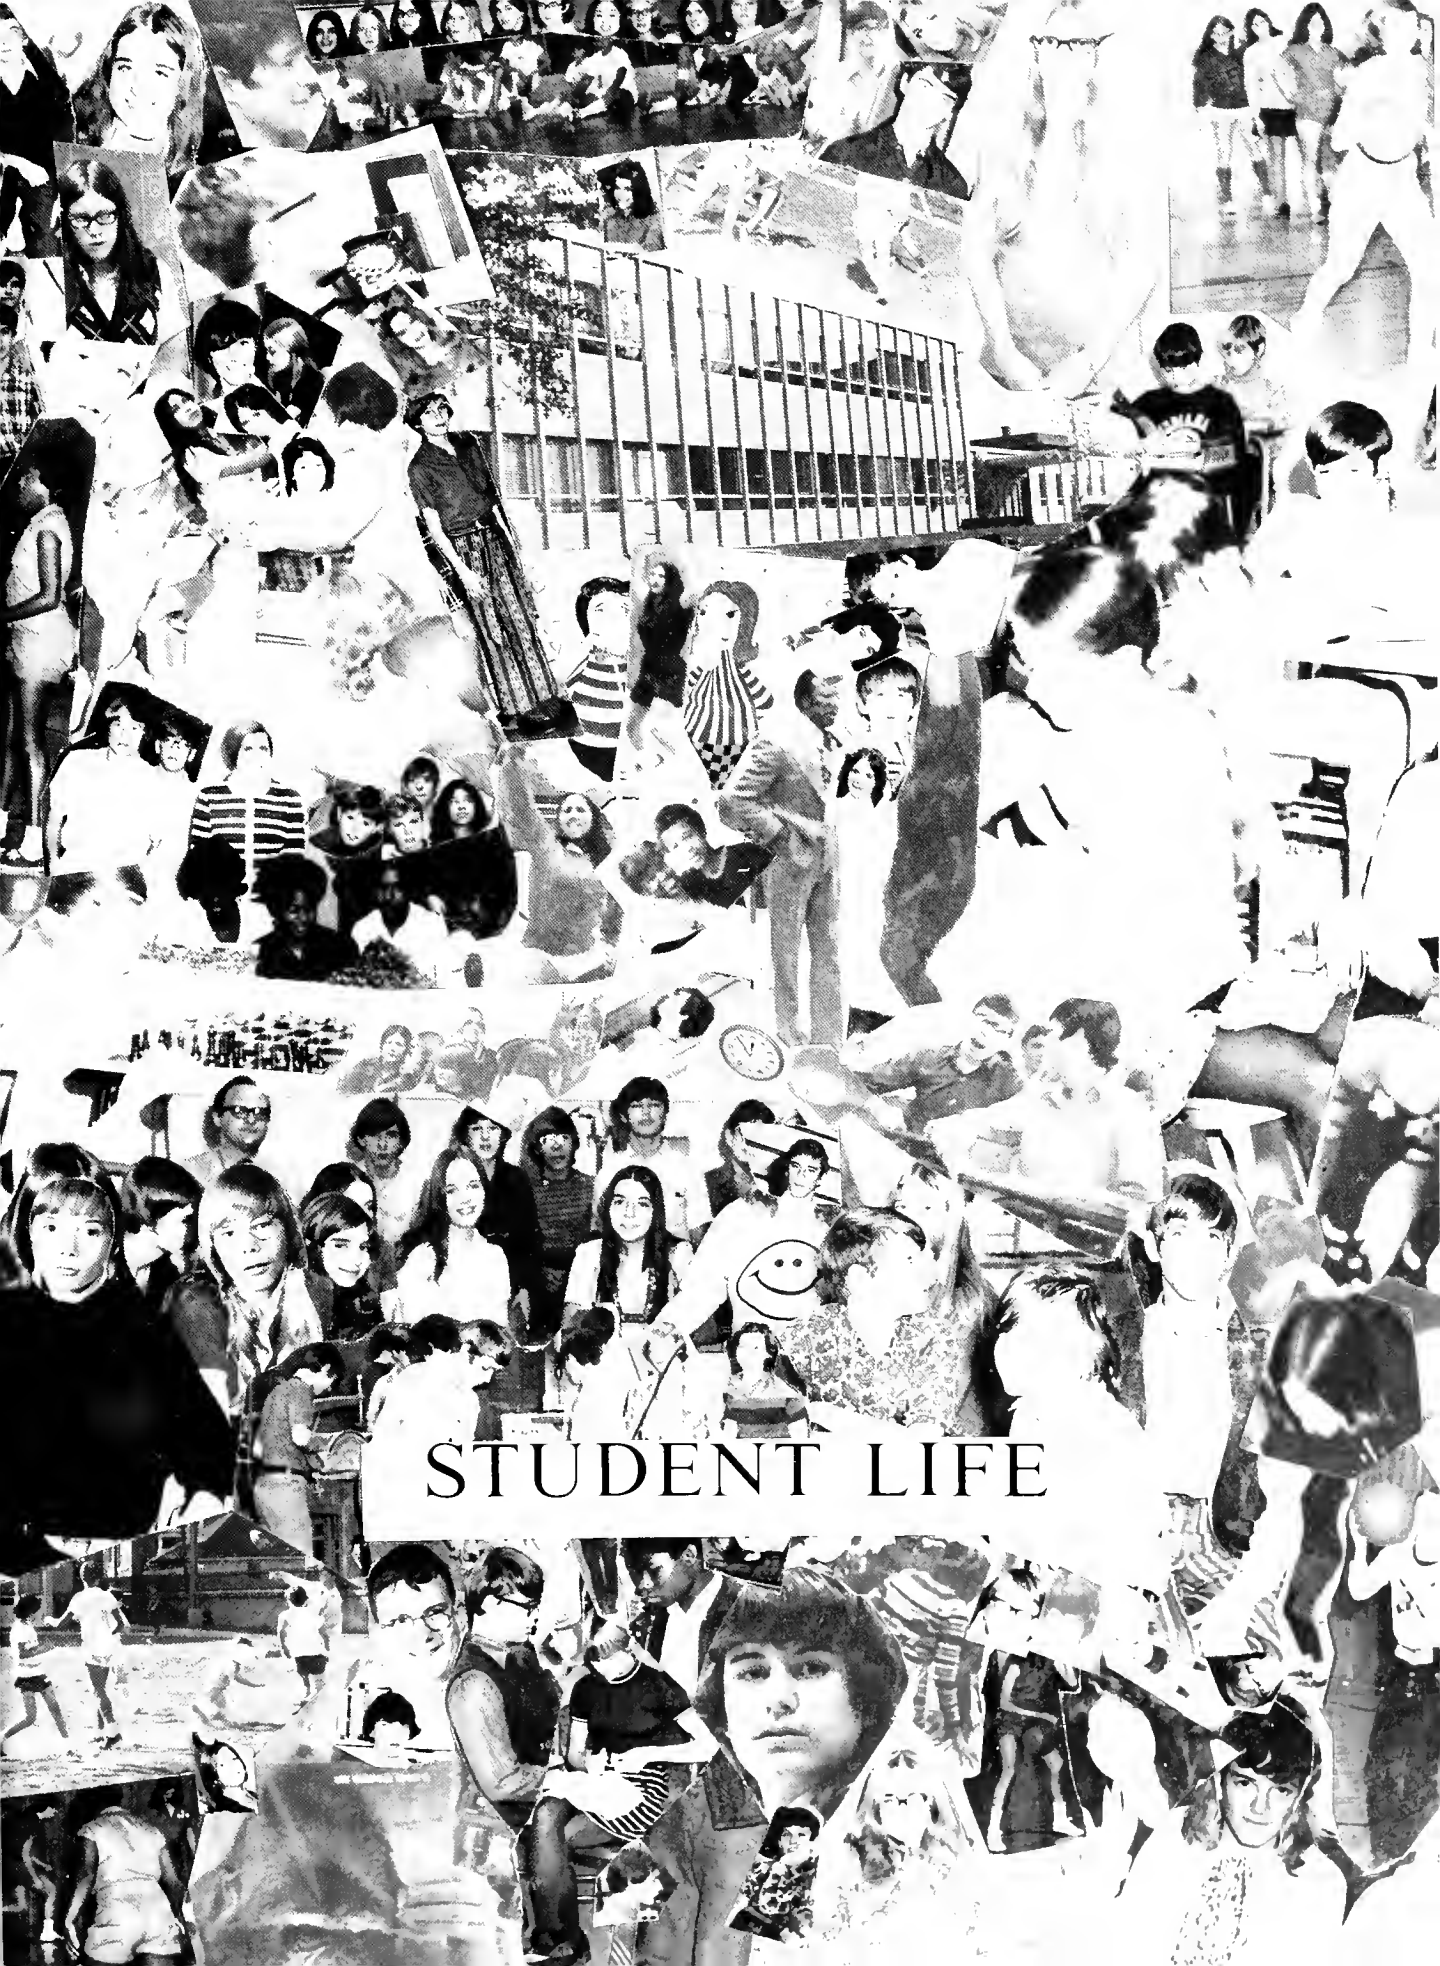

Student Council, an organization of extreme importance was established for the betterment of the school; and improvment of the well-being of each and every student. Student Council is, in fact, Fairfield's own government. The Council, with president Sahida Abdool, informs and enlightens the student body, while undertaking matters of business and bringing about changes.

The Service Club always plays an important role in the school. Members usher at games, grade papers, and generally assist the faculty and administration.

Spartans Strive to Serve Their School.

The Spartan Service Club is headed by Mr. Rodey and Mrs. Long and diligently works to assist the student body, faculty and administration.

STUDENT LIFE

The members of The Falcon Staff work hard to plan each monthly issue of the school's newspaper. The Falcon Staff activities are led this year by the editor-in-chief Diana Manlove.

Publications Broaden Horizons

Seventh, eighth, and ninth graders come together to compose a fine publications crew. Much time and effort goes into the students' schedule to learn the proper techniques in writing copy, copyreading, proofreading, and producing layouts. Then, the students work diligently and co-operatively to produce the school newspaper, The Falcon, and a memorable book of memories, The Voyager.

At the far left is Jan Fields, who gives much direction and leadership to her crew as their editor-in-chief. With Jan, is her assistant Leslie Koehlinger.

Neither high winds nor stormy seas could prevent this devoted yearbook staff from putting in many long hours to produce this years' Voyager.

Member of the Swing Choir take their final pose. This lively group, sponsored by Mr. Anderson, is made up of seventh, eighth, and ninth graders.

Self-expression is a vital function of every human being, and Fairfield offers its students many opportunities to develop their creativity in this area. Under Mr. Anderson's direction, students in Swing Choir communicate pleasing and expressive lyric messages. Mr. Ehinger, likewise, encourages members of the Creative Writing Club to communicate in imaginative and unique ways. Mr. Ade's Art Club, another avenue for conveying one's attitudes and emotions, turns out some provocative works for Fairfield's viewing pleasure.

These are some of Fairfield's many students who are advancing in art.

Mrs. Sams teaches students how to cope with unexpected problems in her first-aid club.

Joys From Assisting Others

First-Aid club members become knowledgeable Spartans in the field of medicine, learning to cope with sudden accidents. The club also prepares small items for the elderly, orphans, and hospital patients and is sponsored by Mrs. Sams. Audio-Visual students learn the techniques of running equipment including the correct care and how to repair them. They then use this important power by assisting the faculty.

Under Mrs. Herderhorst's supervision, ninth grade students learn the job of a librarian by working to assist others in the library.

Students learn Audio-Visual skills from Mr. Donlan during the activity period.

Mr. Epps, at LEFT, guides these members of the Current Events Club in their research of timely subjects.

Mrs. Stein, sponsor of the Speaking Spartans, teaches these students the art of speaking and writing well.

Social Studies Introduces Many Horizons

Speaking Spartans listen intently as Leslie White gives a dramatic oration.

Mr. Riggs teaches these students about Southeast Asia.

Because of Mr. Riggs' first-hand experiences with Asian life, he vividly teaches several Social Studies classes. His students have studied several countries of the world and many current happenings.

Mr. Riggs' seventh grade Social Studies class takes time out for this picture.

Horizons Are Unlimited!!!

Mr. Flynn is surprised during his typing class.

Games are an important part in a students school life. They give students a chance to learn and practice good sportsmanship and to get along with other people.

Some students are having fun in one of the many Game Clubs.

Mr. Beck poses with the members of his Game Club.

Physical Fitness Is Our Goal

Gym is a very important part of the student's school life. It enables students to learn different types of sports, to stay physically fit, to maintain good sportsmanship, and to make new friends.

Students practice football.

Miss Betha exercises this group of girls by doing rocking chairs.

One of Mr. Brun's intramural groups stops to have this picture snapped.

Miss Brosier supervises while her Biology students carefully dissect a frog.

Mr. Crum and Science Club members observe various plants.

Science, Math Offers Challenge

Disecting organisms, learning gene patterns, acquiring electrical skills, and keeping our surrounding areas in good condition are just a few of the different fields of Science taught to the 7th, 8th, and 9th graders. Seventh and eighth grade students all take general Science, while the ninth graders take Biology.

Mr. Bruns helps out students in his eighth grade Science class.

Mr. Trammel assists his eighth graders at the board.

The mathematics department is an important part of Fairfield. The math that Jr. High students receive prepares them for the future. General Math is taught to the 7th and 8th graders, while the ninth graders have a choice between Algebra, Fundamentals of Algebra, and General Math.

Students in Mr. Daniels' Algebra class learn the skill of graphing.

Reading skills are developed under Mrs. Long's guidance.

Vital to the comprehension of all subjects are English and Developmental Reading. Therefore, it is necessary that students develop good reading habits and understanding in their study of our American language. And with the careful aid and excellent guidance of many experienced teachers at Fairfield, the students are able to enhance their learning.

As a break in her day of teaching languages, Mrs. Tyler teaches the techniques of knitting during her activity periods.

In room 119, Mrs. Weick teaches the development of good reading skills.

Variety Widens Horizons

Students watch intently as Kim Beighley explains verb conjugation.

Some of the Teenage Book Club members pose with their sponsor, Miss Haefling. Members get their enjoyment by ordering books from T. A. B.

The goal of Mrs. Eloph's Spanish classes is to develop skills of communication with our neighbors to the South. The beginning Spanish students aim to acquire a mastery of a useful and broad vocabulary. The first year Spanish class introduces the people, the history, the lands, and the culture of Spain.

Mrs. Eloph's Spanish class enjoys this new language.

Varied Horizons in Foreign Languages

Boundless enthusiasm generates in Mrs. Audrey Ferry's French classes. Besides studying the grammar and vocabulary of the French language, their traditions have also been acknowledged. Singing such songs as "Au Clair de la Lune" and "Dit em-moi" and acting out the many different scripts helps the students to become more aware of the French people and their language.

Students in one of Mrs. Ferry's French classes listen to tapes through the head sets.

Strange sounds from the Latin room throughout the year are not a Roman orgy, but the Latin students with their magistra, Mrs. Tyler, repeating the demonstrative pronouns. Requirements of the first year Latin class are not only memorizing, applying, and translating the vocabulary, but also having each student to teach the class.

Mrs. Tyler and some Latin students discuss the meaning of this Latin symbol.

Mr. Kuntz helps out an eighth grader with his drafting.

The drafting area of industrial arts allows students to work in cabinet designing and mechanical drawing. This helps students to acquire skills which are very practical and most useful to them in future years.

The wood area of industrial arts allows students to do bench woodworking and wood turning. In the metal area, boys work with sheet metal, art metal, bench metal, forging with heat treatment, and spot welding. All boys experience this art sometime during their Jr. High years.

Boys learn new skills in industrial arts.

Art students enjoy creating their own masterpieces.

Good grooming, sewing, nutrition, child care, and personal relations are all important in the agenda of the home economics classes. All of these items contribute to the making of good homemakers in future years.

The more feminine Spartans spend their time sewing.

Under Mr. Ehinger, Photography Club members improve their picture-taking skills.

A Fascinating World of Business

Mr. Flynn explains various points concerning General Business.

Students learn various skills of typing.

General Business students guided by Mr. Flynn, look to new horizons in the business world. These students learn such skills as accounting, banking, record and book-keeping, and dealing with taxes and insurance forms.

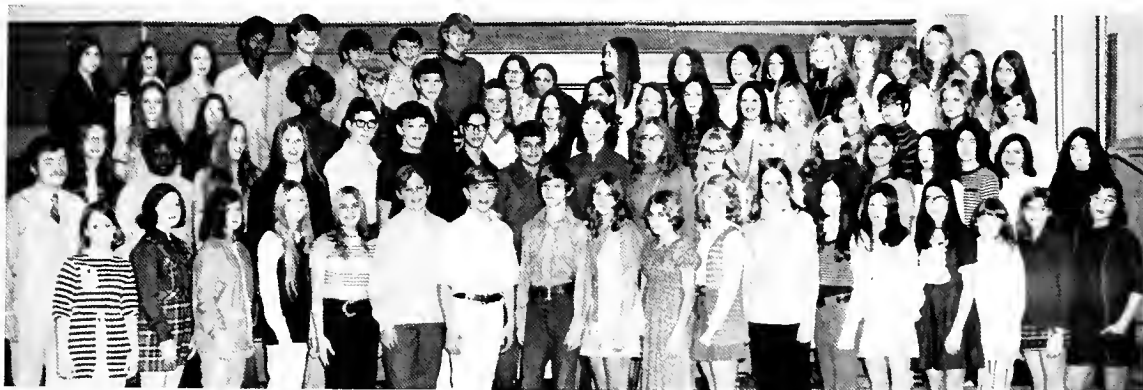

The Varsity Band and Orchestra prepare a variety of music for the coming concert.

The instrumental music groups, under the direction of Mr. Frederick Haigh are truly an enjoyable and important part of Fairfield.

Mr. Jerry Anderson, vocal director, leads the choir in many pop songs.

These young directors are very enthusiastic and keep music really interesting to everyone.

Music: A Universal Language

Members of the Concert Choir look eager to express their kind of music.

Mr. Anderson, looking very relaxed and happy discusses happenings of the day with his seventh grade music class.

Students put their minds to work in Mrs. Pinkerton's study hall.

Study Hall, which is only a privilege of the ninth graders, makes a very handy "prop". Students learn to use their time wisely, and to get something done in this one hour period. Study helps the students prepare the many items necessary for their next classes.

The Fairfield Spartans make good use of their time in planning, working, and in the little they have for relaxation.

Students enjoy chatting over their meals during lunch period.

Students rush to their next classes during the five minute passing time.

Dedicated to the Memory of David Hess

We dedicate this page to the memory of David L. Hess who was killed on December 14, 1971 while crossing Rudisill Boulevard.

Dave will be remembered by students who attended Fairfield, South Wayne, Harrison Hill, and Geyer. He was in the Spartan Service Club, and he enjoyed art and plays, and musicals. Dave was very loyal to his friends, fun to be around, and well liked by many.

SPORTS

Getting the school spirit together is the 9th grade cheerleading squad, Captain, Sahida Abdool; Diane Moore, LuAnn Beatty, Sally McNagny, Dee Manning, Leanne Gerhart, and alt. Debbie York, Patrice Reider.

Cheerleaders Encourage Spartan Spirit

Cheering their team on to victory are the 8th grade cheerleaders, Chris Miller, Gail Palm, Captain JoAnn Keirns, Gay Reider, Missy Hayes, Lynn Wehrenberg and Cammy Brandon.

Varsity Football Team Performs Splendidly

The Varsity Football Team played a fantastic season this past fall. A strong spirit and the will to win helped tremendously in making us second in the city. As you can see, it takes much more than a broken wrist or ankle to keep some of our mighty Spartans off the field!

Reserves Show Much Spirit

A hard-playing Spartan practices his kicking technique between plays at one of our games.

The tough, Spartan image showed brilliantly during eighth grade games. The team, led by Coach Bruns, had a 2-1-2 record at the end of the season. Although they didn't place first among other schools, the spirit in which they played, and the manner in which both team and spectators displayed good sportsmanship, was enough to assure us that although we're not Number One, we try harder!

The team practiced for weeks, so that they would be ready to play when the season started. The time soon came, and when our boys got out on that field, they really knew their stuff! It just goes to show that with hard work and a willing spirit, anything can be done!

Spirited Spartans Show Skill

The seventh grade team, led by Mr. Trammel, their coach, showed in their weeks of practice, a transformation from boys to young men. During the season, they fought bravely to protect Fairfield's honored name, and did so tremendously.

With a true understanding of what school spirit is, they portrayed one of the finest teams this school has seen or will see. Tear 'em up, Seventh Grade!!

Jump up Melchi, Jump up high

Fairfield's varsity basketball team displayed a wonderful season of progress. What started out as an average season ended up putting Fairfield in semifinals for the tournament. The boys displayed fine sportsmanship and enthusiasm. The team was skillfully coached by Mr. Eldridge.

Mr. Eldridge gives special last minute advice to John Arnold.

Spartan Reserves Show Much Spirit

Get that rebound, Spartans.

The 8th grade basketball team ended the season with a record of 3-6. Although the team was defeated, they showed much enthusiasm and good sportsmanship.
